DREADNAUGHT IS SUNK

The Audacious, One of Great Britain's Most Powerful Ships, Meets With Disaster Off the Irish Coast.

(Special to The Herald)

New York, Nov. 14.—The British dreadnaught Audacious, one of the newest and most powerful ships of the British navy, has been sunk off the coast of Ireland, presumably by a mine, although the English censor has prevented any news of the disaster being cabled.

The International News Service has received information concerning it by mail, and today received a photograph sent by its London bureau, showing the Audacious half submerged. The photograph also showed the port deck of the dreadnaught crowded with sailors while about her were several small boats from the liner Olympic, and two torpedo boats which were called to the scene to aid in the rescue work.

The dreadnaught Audacious was completed and launched last year, and was one of the most powerful warships in the British navy.

ON THE GRIDIRON

(By Frank G. Menke)

The footballers of the East are whirling into the stretch without a single team in position to claim the undisputed and unclouded championship, while, in the West, Chicago and Illinois fought it out in Urbana, Ill., today with the western championship hanging in the balance.

Up to the time that the referee's whistle sent the gridiron folks into action this afternoon, the army eleven alone of all the big and near-big teams in the East had been unbeaten and untied. The Army had won all its six games, and won the bulk of them in handy fashion. However, the Army's schedule this year was not a hard one. It was not pitted against a real football team outside of Notre Dame, and the Notre Dame team of this year doesn't size up as a first class eleven.

Some brave but reckless Harvard folks are making championship claims, but the claims hardly will be recognized. There's that 13 to 13 tie with Pennsylvania State to rise up and inquire the whys and therefor of those claims. Furthermore, Harvard isn't going to have a real clinch with Brown today, and Harvard still has to grapple with those Yale fellows.

Should Yale beat Harvard and the Navy beat the army—both among the probabilities—it would gum the football situation as it never has been gummed before in the history of the great college sport. It would leave the East without an unbeaten team. If both these things happened the Washington and Jefferson aggregation would be in a position to make as strong a claim to the claimed title as any other eleven.

W. & J. has beaten Yale. It also whaled a number of the minor elevens by a big score. Then it beat the Pittsburg team which has conquered Christy's Navy and Cornell. In addition to this, W. & J. played Harvard and lost 10 to 9 on a fumble. W. & J. outplayed Harvard in that game, but luck was with the crimson and the crimson won in the last few minutes of play.

Th's claim of W. & J.'s, however, is crumbling upon W. & J. winning all its remaining games and Harvard losing to either Yale or Brown.

The Yale-Princeton game in Princeton today, which Yale ought to win, had no bearing on the championship. If Princeton wins Princeton will have the 20 to 0 defeat at the hands of Harvard staring into its orange and black countenance. If Yale wins it still has Harvard to play and even if it beats Harvard there's that beating given to Yale by W. & J. to hush any Yale claims.

And there you are.

In other years football dope has been upset in the East but it never has been upset as often and as early as this year. With the big college games still to be played, there's not one team among the big elevens in the East that have a clean record—not one team in position to make a bid for the unclouded honors.

That Chicago-Illinois battle in Urbana, Ill., today promised to be a tangle. On past showings the Illinois gang seemed to have the "edge"—but what's the "edge" in these edgeless days? Illinois hasn't been beaten and it hasn't been tied. Chicago hasn't been beaten but it was tied, 0 to 0 in the game with Wisconsin.

Further than this, Illinois has made a better showing both offensively and defensively than has Chicago against the same foes, which made Illinois rooters confident that their eleven would be returned the winner in the day's battle. But Chicago, which played wobbly football for about two weeks, has steadied down again and is in fine shape for the fracas which promised many thrills for the western enthusiasts.

In the South there seems to be nothing else to do but to hand the championship to the great Washington & Lee eleven. W. & L. doesn't belong to the Southern Intercollegiate Athletic Association, but that doesn't alter the fact that W. & L. has the greatest eleven ever turned out below the Mason and Dixon line, and an eleven that well deserves the title of champion.

W. & L. has won every one of the seven games it has played. Not only that, but W. & L. has scored 288 points in its seven games—the greatest total scored by any team in the country so far this season. W. & L. has been scored on but once in its seven games. Certainly this showing of the W. & L. team entitles it to all the laurel leaves they pass around in the southern section of the land.

WITH THE SPORTS

(By Frank G. Menke)

If Turkey impressed all its wrestlers into war service it would have an army large enough to annihilate the allies in two weeks.

The All-American and All-National teams are battling for the championship of nothing in particular, and no one seems to care much which side wins.

Ban Johnson has announced that he is not a candidate for the Nobel Peace Prize.

Some California newspaper folks continue to insist that Pink Bodie, of the White Sox, has jumped to the Feds. If they had said that Pink called to the Feds or waddled to the Feds there are some folks who might have believed it. But Pink jumping—mix!

The grandstand managers who lost their jobs through the closing of the baseball season are at work now directing the war operations in Europe.

There is a large flock of fight fans in this country who think so well of Joe Willard that they offer odds that Puckey McFarland could whip him in a 10 or 20 round fight.

Ad Wolgast got $132.66 and a bustled arm as his reward for tackling Freddie Welsh. Was he cheated?

Owing to the fact that the National League managers will meet at the Waldorf next month, those who have the bar privileges are stocking up to the full capacity.

Cy Falkenberg, who helped to pitch the Indianapolis Feds into a pennant, has been sold to the Brooklyn Feds. When not working on the mound Cy will be used as a support for the Brooklyn Bridge.

Princeton will have a Poe again this year. He's the son of Edgar Allen Poe who was captain of Princeton's great 1889 team. Young Poe now is on the freshman eleven. The Poe family helped to make Princeton famous. Six of its members played on various Princeton teams and each one figured in the Princeton successes. The Poes had uncanny ability in rising up at the crucial moments of the big games and performing stunts that won the game for the Tiger elevens.

QUEER UNITS OF MEASURE.

These In Use Among Some of the Barbaric Tribes of India.

The inhabitants of the Lushai hills, like other barbaric and savage peoples, have standards of weight and measure that they find simple and intelligible, but that are very confusing to the stranger who encounters them for the first time. In his book on the Lushai, Kuki claims Lieutenant Colonel J. Shakespear tells about their units of measure.

In every village there is a small flat basket, the size of which is fixed by the chief, which is used for all retail dealings in rice and the like, but they measure large quantities in loads, a load being about fifty pounds. After the harvest the unhusked rice is piled in a conical heap. A Lushai will tell you his crop is chip zawn, meaning that the heap is level with the top of his head, or shid zawn, when it is level with the end of the gun held up perpendicularly over his head. That is about the record crop; lesser quantities are denoted by the height of his hand or foot or ax held up. He measures time by the cooking of a pot of rice—about an hour—or by the time he can hold a slip of opium in his mouth. He has names for each period of the day, denoting his usual occupation at that hour; he also divides the year according to the agricultural occupation proper to the different seasons.

Short distances are measured by parts of the human body, as we speak of a span; but the Lushai has sixteen or seventeen of these, extending from the tip of the first joint of the first finger to the tip of the first joint of the second finger, which is the distance a man can stretch with both arms extended. Longer distances the Lushai describes by such terms as the distance of the nearest thim, the distance of the farthest thim, the distance a midman will wander during the day, the distance a man can travel before his midday meal, terms that perplex strangers, although they are well understood by the people.

There are few measures of weight. One is chual—as much as a man can support hung from the tip of the first finger, palm downward. Many of the stars and constellations are named; most of them have some story attached to them. The months are lunar months and some have names, but these are not widely known or used.

A brittle thing is speech, so take precaution how you bend it. For any man can make a break, But mighty few can mend it.—Judge.

GERMANY ON THE MONROE DOCTRINE

Washington, Nov. 13.—A new construction of the Monroe doctrine from the German point of view may be put up to the state department and President Wilson if this government attempts in the slightest degree to interfere with shipments of coal and other contraband of war to German vessels from South American countries. This was stated today by a high diplomatic authority.

A frank statement that "what is sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander" may be presented to this government in that event with regard to the Canadian situation. It is pointed out that this government does not attempt to prevent the shipment to England from Canada of arms, ammunition and even troops on board regular transports. Therefore, Germany is ready to ask why the United States should complain if another part of America and one apparently regarded as being affected by the Monroe doctrine to no greater or less extent than Canada makes contraband shipments to German cruisers.

NO ACTION ON NORTH SEA

State Department Prepares No Protest Against Mines Because of Lack of Knowledge of Who Planted Them

Washington, Nov. 13.—The United States Government has no present intention of joining other neutral maritime Powers in representations to the European belligerents looking toward the opening to neutral merchantmen of trade channels in the North Sea, now strewn with mines. Secretary Bryan said that the American Government "was not ready to discuss the matter." He told Mr. Brann, the minister from Denmark, who called at the State Department to ask what the Government's attitude might be, that nothing had been done toward preparing a protest. It is understood the position of State Department officials is that they do not know who has laid mines in the North Sea, and therefore have no authority for directing a protest to any particular nation among the belligerents. The action recently received from Great Britain of the closure of the North Sea merely stated that mine fields were located on routes previously used by merchantmen traversing the North Sea, and advised such vessels to seek other routes. There was nothing to indicate that the mines were laid by the British, and the impression has prevailed that many of them, at least, were German.

The Italian ambassador, Count di Celere, has presented a memorandum to Secretary Bryan explaining that new shipping regulations announced through the Italian consulate did not discriminate against American vessels but merely required a guarantee from all vessels carrying steaming passengers which were not previously certified as conforming to the Italian laws in regard to such ships. American shipping companies had protested.

VILLA MOVING ON MEXICO CITY

Mexico City, Nov. 13.—Railway traffic except for military purposes has been suspended over the northern half of the republic. The last line closed was the Queretaro branch, which the War Minister desires to use in the transportation of the troops now in that city.

Gen. Obregon has received an answer to his telegram to Gen. Francisco Villa requesting that Villa resign as commander of the northern forces. The answer was considered unsatisfactory, however, because it was signed by Gen. Robles, who styled himself Minister of War. Gen. Obregon was told to address the President of the Republic, Gen. Guiterrez.

Extra guards have been placed about the city. Word was received here late last night that the city of Puebla was being attacked by Zapata's followers in force.

AMERICAN TROOPS TO STAY

Until it is determined which Mexican faction can carry out guarantees America demands.

Washington, Nov. 13.—Not until it is determined which of the contending Mexican factions can exercise control of Vera Cruz and execute the guarantees requested by the United States will American troops be ordered from the southern port. That decision by President Wilson and his advisers stood today as the American attitude toward the tangled Mexican situation, which threatens a renewal of civil strife. Coupled with it is the desire not to interfere in the controversy among the military leaders of the Republic.

Whether civil war would develop in earnest appears to depend upon the alignment of the various chieftains. If a majority of them finally determine to uphold the Aguascalientes constitution, when named Emilio Guiterrez as provisional President, Carranza probably will be compelled to surrender power. Several days will be required for the development of that situation, which is marked by elaborate plots and counter-plots between contending elements to muster the support of the military chieftains.

Reports from American agents accompanying Carranza, Villa and Guiterrez reflected the uncertainty surrounding the situation. Telegrams which Carranza's Washington representative announced had been received from Carranza stated that hostilities had been begun between his forces and those of the convention, and that he had ordered all civil and military authorities to heed only his instructions, as he remained "first chief."

NEW HAMPSHIRE COLLEGE NOTES

New Hampshire College, Durham N. H., Nov. 13.—"I can see no good reason why New Hampshire should not win at Manchester Saturday, in its game with Rhode Island," said T. D. Shepherd, coach of the New Hampshire State team, today. "We will be able to play our complete first string backfield for the second time this season, and with the new backfield and a strengthened line the team should have no difficulty in defeating Rhode Island."

"We have been hard hit in every game by injuries, but I am glad to say that the eleven men who will represent us on Saturday will be in all-round good condition. Every man will be carefully bandaged and padded before the game to prevent minor bruises. The men are all anxious to wipe out the defeat administered by Rhode Island two weeks ago and will play the best game of the season at Manchester."

"Our attack will probably be varied, but as soon as Rhode Island's method of play is seen I will order that game that will meet the system of our opponents."

The probable line-up of the team at Manchester as given out by the coach is as follows:

Murdoch, center; Merrill and Corvieu, guards; Jenkins and Swett, tackles; Parker and Westover, ends; Hobbs, quarter-back; Broderick and Hazen, half-backs; Durckel, full-back. The team will leave Durham Saturday morning and stay at the Hotel Manchester until they start for the field in the afternoon.

A VIOLENT THUNDER STORM

A heavy thunder shower passed over this city Friday evening shortly after seven o'clock and it was about as heavy as any of the previous summer.

There was a brilliant display of lightning and the rain fell in torrents, driven in front of a gale from the southwest and while no damage was done, it looked bad for a time.

A shower of the size of Friday evening created a new record for Nov. 13 or Friday Nov. 13.

During the height of the gale a lightning bolt struck a limb of a tree on Middle street and shattered it. The flag pole in the Farragut school yard also was blown down.

Lehigh Valley Counsel Declares in Government's Anti-Trust Suit That Pennsylvania Fields Will Soon be Exhausted.

New York, Nov. 13.—Final arguments were made yesterday in the Government's anti-trust suit against five anthracite coal carrying railroads and coal companies. Federal Judge Charles M. Hughes took the papers in the case and reserved decision. In the course of his argument Major F. W. Wheaton of Wilkesbarre, counsel for the Lehigh Valley Coal Company, made the assertion that the play was not far distant when the last ton of anthracite will have been mined in Pennsylvania, the only known hard coal field in the world.

IF BILIOUS, SICK OR CONSTIPATED TAKE CASCARETS

No headache, bad cold, sour stomach or colic bowels by morning.

Get a ten cent box now. You're bilious! You have a throat-ache in your head, a bad taste in your mouth, your eyes turn yellow, your skin is yellow with dark rings under your eyes; your lips are parched. No wonder you feel ugly, mean and ill tempered. Your system is full of bile not properly passed off and what you need is a cleaning up inside. Don't continue being a bilious nuisance to yourself and those who love you, and don't resort to harsh physics that irritate and injure. Remember that most disorders of the stomach, liver and bowels are cured by morning with gentle, thorough Cascarets—they work while you sleep.

A ten cent box from your druggist will keep you liver and bowels clean, stomach sweet and your head clear for months. Children love to take Cascarets because they taste good and never grip or sicken.

Manufacturing in states, which have enacted progressive laws, against unjust competition of business and manufacturing in other states which have no safety appliance laws, or fail to properly enforce such laws as they have enacted.

The Governor reacted some of the enactments of the department of factory inspection in Illinois.

"Since the enactment of such laws," said Governor Dunne, "the Illinois department has compelled over 18,000 dangerous machinery parts to be provided with safeguards. It has enforced the construction of over 4,000 fire escapes and exits, and 7,000 devices on elevators insuring their safety. It has enforced the guarding of over 43,000 bells and pulleys, 30,000 gears and 1,300 emery wheels. It has compelled the removal of over 18,000 set screws. It has issued 13,000 orders covering sanitation and ventilation and eliminated or compelled changes in over 127,000 possible sources of danger from machinery. It has compelled the safeguarding of machinery during the past four years which has cost employers $4,000,000, and has taken steps, which, during the forthcoming year, with the approval of the directors of several Illinois corporations, will result in the expenditure of a sum greater than $1,000,000.

Illinois to enforce laws

Madison, Wis., Nov. 13.—Governor Edward F. Dunne, of Illinois, today made a strong plea before the Governors' Conference here, for co-operation between the states to secure the enactment of uniform laws for the safety of the workers. Such co-operation, Governor Dunne held, is essential for the protection of business and made stringent changes in the interest of the safety of life and limb, but it has enforced many laws on sanitation of inestimable value to the working men and women of the state.

"A progressive state, which enacts humane laws for the conservation of human life and limb, and for the preservation of the health, morals and well-being of its laboring citizens, is thus placed at a great disadvantage as compared with a non-progressive state, which, by its failure to enact such laws, invites the manufacturer whose only aim is financial profit, within its borders, and thus enhances the manufacturing development in such non-progressive states.

"It must be apparent that if such salutary laws must be passed and enforced—as all must concede—that there should be more or less uniformity of legislation in all the states where such industries are carried on, of the enactment of federal laws covering the subject matter. This latter initiative has been seriously urged by many manufacturers and political economists; but, in my judgment, is not feasible or possible. Federal legislation, under the interstate Commerce Act, may be applied to interstate railroads, and other interstate utilities, but most of the product of our manufacturing industries are not shipped across with an interstate character. A federal law must be uniform in its application to all parts of the United States, and a law which might be salutary and advisable relating to the manufacture of goods in the iron and steel industry of New York, Philadelphia and Chicago, might be grossly unjust and unduly onerous in western villages and cities.

"It may be objected that the enactment of such uniform laws as the result of compromises between committees representing various states, is a violation of section 10, Article I of the constitution of the United States which declares, 'That no state shall enter into any treaty, alliance or confederation.' My answer to this is that no official compact of treaty between the states is necessary. The enactment of uniform laws in each state, corresponding with the laws of a sister state, will be the result, not of interstate agreement, but interchange of experience and wisdom between the citizens of such states. Identical or similar laws can be passed by great nations as Great Britain, France or Germany without compact and will be binding upon the subjects of said nations when enacted. Uniform laws enacted by the great manufacturing states, relating to sanitation and safety of life and limb of industrial workers, is a crying demand of the time, and, I believe, is a matter of early accomplishment."

Down With the Red Flag.

Because sticklers for the letter of the law have discovered that the carrying of crimson banners by Harvard University at its football and baseball games is a technical violation of the Massachusetts red flag law, a howl of derision has been raised over this "fool law" of the Old Bay State, at whose expense newspapers published in other states and some, possibly, within the limits of Massachusetts, imagine that they are having a great deal of fun.

The state is chided for its proclivity to pass "fool laws," so called, and that it is a fair target for such shafts few who are acquainted with the facts will dispute. There is too much legislation in Massachusetts, whose legislature is in session practically six months of the year, and with such prolonged sessions it is inevitable that there should be some foolish and unnecessary legislation.

But it is a question whether the red flag law is as ridiculous and uncalled for as is represented just at this time. All know the origin of this law. It sprang from the fact that it was adopted as their emblem by lawless elements who beneath its folds have marched, sung and shouted for the substitution of law and order by monarchy. Perhaps this is a trivial thing, but the communities that have witnessed red flag parades do not so regard it, and the law makers did not when they enacted the law designed to suppress these unpatriotic and dangerous exhibitions.

The red flag in itself may be of no consequence, and the same may be said of any other flag. It is the sentiment behind the flag that counts. And it is the sentiment expressed by the followers of the red flag that makes it dangerous to the peace and welfare of society and industry. For this reason it is proper that the use of that flag should be prohibited.

If a flag is of no consequence why does not Harvard give up her time honored crimson in behalf of a law enacted purely in the interest of peace and public order? Is it urged that sentiment stands in the way because crimson has been her color so long? Well, there is an equally strong sentiment, and one far more dangerous, behind the red flag of anarchy, which should be suppressed forever, with the sentiment behind it, so far as possible.

There is no room in Massachusetts or the country for any flag that stands for disorder and the destruction of peace, property and prosperity, and for this reason the red flag of anarchy should go.

Perhaps the prohibitionists should be able to get as much satisfaction out of the European war as any other class, as their pet hobby has made great strides in some of the warring nations since the beginning of hostilities. Russia has prohibited the sale of vodka, France has shut down on absinthe, and some writers in that country are urging that alcohol is a greater enemy than the "savage German." Lord Kitchener has decreed that no liquor shall be supplied to the English army while it is on the continent, and thus does the flow of blood replace the flow of alcohol. If at such a time there are any who are able to see that "all things work together for good" it should be the prohibitionists.

The women are forging ahead, even though a number of states which they campaigned thoroughly failed to vote for equal suffrage at the recent election. But a woman has just been appointed as assistant United States attorney at San Francisco, and that is something in the way of recognition, particularly as she is the first woman in the country to occupy such a position.

The high price of eggs is not due entirely to the European war. The hens are industriously abstaining from their wonted function and the effects of the "strike" are seriously felt. At such a time the cold storage brand enjoys a better standing than it does at certain seasons of the year.

The manufacture of toys in this country has been greatly stimulated by the foreign war, and liberal shipments are also coming in. There will be no lack of toys for the little ones at Christmas time, and if some of them are "made in America," so much the better.

The night riders are still busy in the South to an extent which makes those old enough to remember the Ku Klux days feel very much at home. But home is an extremely uncomfortable place when "regulated" by night riders.

Fourteen states are now "dry," theoretically at least. The number, of course, includes Maine, where the mayor of Bangor recently ordered all the saloons closed.

Have a care, San Francisco. Earthquakes, even though slight, are not good advertising for the coming exposition.

It will be well for certain elements to remember that Charles B. Whitman is still district attorney of New York.

Map Showing Principal Points Of Russian Drives Into Germany.

How the Russians have possibly opened a way for a march on Berlin is shown in the above map. It is based on official and unofficial reports from Petrograd. Of vital importance was the statement in a Petrograd dispatch that communication had been broken between the German armies in Poland and in East Prussia and that the Russians were concentrating large forces between the Warthe and Vistula rivers (B), especially at Wlozlawsk. Such forces would be in position to drive a wedge through the opening made between the German armies and would be able to advance over a comparatively open country. To do so it must dispose of the two German armies and break the fortress of Thorn on the Vistula. But apparently measures already have been taken with this end in view. Already a large Russian force has unopposed through Milawa (A) into East Prussia. Operating with the forces concentrated at Wlozlawsk it might be strong enough to take care of Thorn and hold the East Prussian frontier even if the German forces now in far East Prussia should retire to this line and attack them. Russian forces that reached Pleschen in Silesia (C) appear to be the advance guard of strong forces. If so a Russian army is planted behind the left flank of the German defensive position from Kallitz to Czenstochowa and is in position to force the German army away from Berlin and, with the forces operating at D and E, bend it back upon the Little Carpathians as the Austrians are being bent back on the main Carpathians.

BOSTON LETTER

Boston, Nov. 14—A short session with economy the watchword, is to be the legislative program of Channing Cox, the next speaker of the House and President Coolidge of the senate have their way on Beacon Hill this year. Senator Hobbs of Worcester, titular head of the senate, under President Coolidge, has been in conference with Representative Cox and it is believed that there will be less friction this year than for a number of years. With a heavy Republican majority in each branch, the heaviest in years, the leaders have confidence in carrying the program. There is no grand rush to introduce bills this year, and this is considered another good omen. It is even hoped that Speaker Prothrogham's record of adjournment, in late May, may be bettered a trifle this year.

Boston, Nov. 14—Despite the extra $1000 which Joseph Walker contributed to the Progressive State Committee for the expressly stipulated purpose of paying old debts and despite the drastic economies practiced this year, the Progressive party is still "deep in the hole," mainly as hangover from last year. Charles S. Bird, Joseph Walker, James F. Maguire, H. Hewitt Newton, Senator C. E. Burbank and others prominent in the party have held a conference and have decided on a policy of "watchful waiting." There one hope lies in Theodore Roosevelt and the 1916 campaign. They condemn Colonel H. L. Kinsdale, Progressive candidate for congress in the 14th district, and Secretary S. E. French of Athol of the state committee for jumping back into the Republican party so soon after the election, and are practically agreed in the optimistic belief that the time may yet come when the pendulum will swing toward the third party.

Boston, Nov. 14—That the nation that dares to rest its honor on the proposition that love is mightier than the sword, that brotherhood is stronger than armament of war, shall triumph today, was the belief expressed by Rev. Edward Payson Drew to Worcester, speaking at the closing session of the Fourth New England Congregational Congress. He said: "We must confess that the so-called Christian civilization has been most painfully superficial. We have engaged in surface reform. We have been tinkering with the pet social theories, but the tiger remains at bay. We must go deeper down."

Boston, Nov. 14—More than 8400 pheasants were killed during the open season which has just closed. Arriving reports which the Fish and Game Commission will receive by tonight may be expected to increase the total by at least 100. Essex County was the most productive part of the state, 2348 kills being reported from that section. Dr. George W. Fields, chairman of the commission, says that the season will probably open on October 15 next year instead of October 12 as this fall.

Boston, Nov. 14—That a law medical standard prevails in Boston in regard to the prenatal care of mothers, which is the starting point in the prevention of infant mortality, was the declaration of Dr. A. B. Emmons, 2nd, of this city, speaking before the annual convention of the American Association for Study and Prevention of Infant Mortality at the Harvard Medical school. There is a lack of appreciation in this city, he said, of the vast importance of the science of prenatal care which properly developed would probably save at least half of the present infant loss. A survey of Boston's conditions, he said, shows also a lack of co-ordination in providing reasonable care for the woman of little means.

GOV. FELKER SETS DATE.

WHEN DREAMS COME TRUE

"I dreamed," said the cynic, "that I sold a $300,000 bill of goods. And," he laughed scornfully, "had it lasted five minutes longer, it would have been a clean million."

He thought he had dreamed the impossible. But the great successful manufacturers of this country—men who started business with a small capital, and who are today ranked among the millionaires, would not have laughed! Year ago they realized that anything is possible! They knew that with a good product to place upon the market, and a good advertising medium in which to send a daily message to the public about this product, they could sell, without difficulty, many $300,000 worth of goods.

A careful study of one's product, a knowledge of local conditions, the advertising columns of THE DAILY NEWSPAPER—and without a doubt the time will arrive when dreams come true!

GENERAL SCOTT CHIEF OF STAFF OF U. S. ARMY

Funston Will Be Major General to Succeed Wotherspoon.

Washington, Nov. 13—Brigadier General Hugh L. Scott was selected by President Wilson today to be chief of staff of the United States Army upon the retirement next Monday of Major General Wotherspoon.

The vacancy of major general created by General Wotherspoon's retirement will be filled by the nomination of Brigadier General Frederick Funston, now in command at Vera Cruz. Brigadier General Tasker H. Bliss will become chief of the mobile army division and upon the retirement of Major General Murray on April 29, 1915, General Scott will be appointed a major general.

Secretary Garrison, making these announcements after a lengthy conference with the president, said for the present, that General Funston would remain at Vera Cruz, indicating that the stay of American forces at the Mexican port was still indefinite.

Upon the retirement of Major General Carter on November 19, 1915, Brigadier General Taylor H. Bliss will become a major general. Mr. Garrison's statement added:

"The next three vacancies in the rank of major-general are due as follows:

First to the infantry, second to the infantry, third to the coast artillery. The vacancies will occur first by the promotion of General Funston; second, by the retirement of General Hoyle; third, by the promotion of General Scott. Upon the occurrence of these vacancies the following colonels will be promoted to fill the same:

Henry A. Green, infantry; William A. Mann, infantry; Frederick S. Strong, coast artillery.

CURRENT OPINION

Peace Before Any One Is Beaten Only a Truce.

Whatever we do or do not do or say, we should not urge peace now. Peace now, before any one is beaten, would be only a truce, a armistice, and for the next decade all Europe would use every energy to arm for the next war. Better either should conquer than that the passions now unleashed should force Europe to arm herself for another Armageddon. We want peace supremely, but a drawn battle, with the balance of power in most unstable equilibrium, would not explode, but strengthen, the horrid fallacy that huge standing armies are the best guarantee of peace.

The only hope of lasting peace now lies in a war so disastrous that all the world will come to realize its horror and with one accord pledge their lives, their fortunes and their sacred honor henceforth and forever to arbitrate their quarrels.—By G. Stanley Hall, President of Clark University.

PRaise Hooker AT CONVENTION

New Hampshire Highway Head Takes Big Part at Georgia Meeting.

Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 13—Percy Hooker, state superintendent of highways of New Hampshire, declared that there will soon be a revolution of feeling throughout the United States against high priced experimental roads and that good roads will be secured by the method of more mileage of less expensive roads, before the American Roads congress now in session here.

"With the immense mileage of roads in the United States, it is clear that even in wealthier states a large proportion of the roads will never be improved under the types of construction now considered necessary for their improvement if it is necessary to improve them with the higher types of construction," he said.

Mr. Hooker declared that proper attention to drainage and location of a road was more than nine-tenths of the solution of good roads given the proper repair work on the "stitch in time" theory of maintenance.

Mr. Hooker has taken an important part in the convention which is regarded as one of the most important meetings ever held in the direction of good roads, and one of the most influential. There are 5000 delegates in attendance and the exhibits are valued at $2,000,000.

BIG ENTRY FOR THE POULTRY SHOW

The Board of Trade have issued a very attractive premium list for the Poultry Show, to be held at Freeman's hall on Dec. 8, 9, 10, 11, and the list includes prizes for about every style of poultry. There are many valuable birds here and the owners are all keenly interested in showing them.

Prof. R. V. Mitchell the poultry expert at New Hampshire College, will devote one night to the show.

The entries are to be in by Dec. 1 and the pens and cages will be assigned so that everything will be in readiness for the opening night and if the price of eggs keeps going higher the hen is liable to be somewhat undervalued.

"THERE'S A REASON"

SPEED AND BIG GUNS DO THE TRICK

Keeling, Coos Islands, via Berlin, Nov. 13.—It was early on Monday that the unexpected arrival of the British broke the calm of these isolated islands, which the distant news of war had hitherto left unaffected. One of the islands is known as Direction Island, and there the Eastern Telegraph Company has a cable station and staff engaged in relaying messages between Europe and Australia. Otherwise the inhabitants are all Malays, with the exception of the descendants of June Charles Ross, a British naval officer, who came to these islands 50 years ago and founded a line of "unconquered Kings."

The war seemed very far away. Official bulletins passed through the cable station, but they gave as little news, and the only excitement was when it was rumored that the company was sending off in case of a raid on the station, and that the island must be defended.

Emden Lands a Force
Then we heard from Singapore that the German cruiser Emden had been dispatched to the islands, and toward the end of August one of the cable staff thought he saw searchlights out over the sea. Then suddenly we were awakened from our calm and made to feel that we had become a most important place in the war area.

At 5 a. m. on Monday a four-funnelled cruiser arrived, full speed, at the entrance to the lagoon. Our suspicions were aroused, for she was flying in flag, and her fourth funnel obviously was a dummy made of painted canvas.

Therefore we were not altogether surprised at the turn of events. The cruiser at once lowered an armored launch and two boats, which came ashore, and landed on our coral beach 500 officers and 40 men, all fully armed and having four machine guns. The Germans for all doubt about the mysterious cruiser now was at a end, at once rushed up to the cable station and turned on the operators, smashed their instruments and set them over all the buildings.

All knives and firearms found in the possession of the staff at once were confiscated. But in spite of the excitement outside work was carried on in the cable office as usual, up to the moment when the Germans burst in. A general call was sent out just before the wireless apparatus was blown up.

The whole of the staff was placed under arrest while the instruments were being destroyed; but it is only fair to say that the Germans, working in well disciplined fashion under their officers, were most civil. There was no such brutality as we hear characterize the German army's behavior toward civilians, and there were no attempts at pillaging.

Cruiser Takes to Heels
While the cable station was being put out of action, the crew of the launch scrambled for cable and endeavor to cut them, but, fortunately without success.

The electrical stores then were blown up. At 9 a. m. we heard the sound of a siren from the Emden, and this evidently was a signal to the landing party to return, for they at once dashed for their boats, but the Emden got under way at once and the boats were left behind.

Looking eastward we could see the reason for this sudden departure, for a warship, which we afterward learned was the Australian cruiser Sydney, was coming up at full speed, in pursuit. The Emden did not wait to discuss matters, but, firing her first shot at a range of about 3700 yards, steamed north as hard as she could go.

At first the firing of the Emden seemed excellent, while that of the Sydney was somewhat erratic. This, as afterward learned, was due to the two shots that the German's got home. However, the British runners soon overcame any difficulties this may have caused and settled down to their work, so that before long two of the Emden's funnels were shot away. She lost one of her masts quite early in the fight.

Deserted Germans Sail Away
Both heading away with their big guns, the two cruisers disappeared below the horizon, the Emden being on fire.

So the great naval duel passed from our sight and we could turn our attention to the portion of the German crew that had been left behind. These men had put off in their boats, obedient to the signal of the siren, but when their ship steamed off without them they could do nothing else but come ashore again.

On retreating they fired up on the shore of the lagoon, evidently determined to fight to a finish if the British cruiser sent a party ashore, but at 8 p. m. the German raiders embarked on the old schooner Ayraon, which belongs to Mr. Ross, the "unconquered King" of the islands, seeking a quantity of clothes and stores, they sailed off, and nothing has been seen of them since.

Early the next morning, Tuesday, Nov. 10, we saw the Sydney returning, and at 8.4 a. m. she anchored off the island. From various members of the crew I gathered some details of the running fight with the Emden.

Speed Advantage With Sydney
The Sydney, having the advantage in speed, was able to keep out of range of the Emden's guns and to bombard her with her own heavier metal.

The engagement lasted 80 minutes. The Emden finally running ashore on North Keeling Island, and becoming an utter wreck.

Only two German shells proved effective. One, which failed to explode, smashed the main rangefinder and killed one man. The other killed three men and wounded 14.

Each of the cruisers attempted to torpedo the other, but both were unsuccessful, and the duel proved a contest in hard pounding at long range.

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

Diet For the Anemic.
A diet for anemic persons should be very nutritious and digestible. As much as possible should be taken, including a generous supply of red meat lightly cooked, green vegetables, no potatoes, eggs raw or poached, bacon toasted or boiled, no fried food, no real or pork, no tea, very little coffee, plenty of milk and cream, cocoa, milk puddings, and stewed fruits. Stewed prunes, figs and baked apples are helpful, as are fluids in large quantities; no acids, such as vinegar, acid wines, like claret and white wines; no recooked meat, no spiced or curried dishes, no salads or pickles, no cheese, new bread or pastry.

GROWTH OF INDIA.
It Has Made Wonderful Strides in the Last Half Century.

India's trade has increased during the last half century from $100,000,000 to more than $1,400,000,000. It has in operation 22,000 miles of railroad in its railroad mileage, carrying 330,000,000 passengers yearly at the rate of five miles for one cent. It maintains 70,000 miles of telegraph line, over which messages can be sent for more than 2,000 miles at a cost of only 12 cents.

India is now the largest exporter of rice in the world, holds first place in its exports of tea, next to Argentina is the largest exporter of hides, and next to the United States is the largest exporter of cotton in the world. Next to the United States and Russia it is the largest wheat producing country. The Tata iron works in Bengal, employing 8,000 men, have laid down iron in San Francisco at less than the price charged by the United States Steel corporation.

India's system of irrigation stands easily first in the world, being far more extensive than that of Egypt or America. Its more than 40,000 miles of irrigation canals have reclaimed more than 22,000,000 acres of land, and famine has been prevented forever in some districts.—Sherwood Eddy in World's Work.

BISMARCK'S PROPHECY.
A Peep Into the Future by the Great German Statesman.

Many years ago the writer, then a mere boy, was for a short time a privileged visitor in the country home at Friedrichsruh of the late Prince Bismarck. The memory of one conversation remains with me as though it occurred but yesterday.

With a map of the world before him the prince was explaining how the existing political conditions had come into being and, among other things, remarked that no state of affairs could be considered permanent there—in Europe.

Placing his left hand upon France, he said, "Here we shall have ever growing dissension and weakness resulting from overculture." Then, placing his right hand upon Asia, he said: "Eventually here will move here" (indicating Europe by a tapping movement of the forefinger of his left hand). "It is only a question of when these millions become hungry enough."

A little later he continued, "In those days there will be but one safe country, but one country that shall represent our civilization." And silently he lifted his left hand and laid it heavily upon America.—Howard V. Sutherland in New York Post.

Spoiled Food in Commerce.
The United States department of agriculture has issued a ruling which hereafter will require any spoiled food or be deteriorated before it can be shipped in interstate commerce.

This will permit the shipment of spoiled eggs for use in tanning and other spoiled substances for the making of fertilizer or oils or greases used in machinery, but will require them to be treated with salt, kerosene oil or coloring matter or in other ways so that they cannot possibly be used for food. This is on the analogy of the denaturing of grain alcohol for use in the arts.

Chinese in Uncle Sam's Army.
A company of Chinese soldiers regularly enlisted in the militia in Hawaii constitutes an odd body in the reserve fighting forces of the United States. The organization was formed with the sanction of the war department at Washington, and under the tutelage of American army officers has made such pronounced progress in the mastery of military tactics that the recruiting of a second company is being considered.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Woman's Progress in England.
A woman has for the first time been appointed superintendent and deputy medical officer to the women convicts in an English prison. Less than fifty years ago Miss Jex-Blake, the first woman to attempt taking a medical degree in England, was stoned in the streets of Edinburgh and the university closed to her.—Women's Political World.

Power of the Modern Big Gun.
Some idea of the power of a modern gun may be formed when it is stated that when an eighty-one ton gun fires a shot twelve miles it is fired at such an angle that the shell goes up to a height of 5,428 feet higher than Mont Blanc. A 100 ton projectile strikes with a force equal to 405,000 155 pound men jumping from a height of one foot.

Pathetic.

Oh, and in the lot of the poet
His shirt tears; there's no one to sue
That you can't get his song
With his high buttoned coat.
His shirtless, but no one will meet.
—Albion Democrat.

Oh, and in the heart of the poet
Of Roddy McPherson (you should meet)
He hasn't a hair
On his head, though up there
Is a dandy big smooth place to greet.
—Houston Post.

We've always opined that a poet
Had him and the breezes would gloat,
But Judd and McPherson
Are a pair who are free
Of all blather, and their craniums about.
—Birmingham Age-Herald.

The Truth.
"Men are getting more sensible," said the moralist. "I see very few of them congregating on the street corners on rainy days to stare at the ladies."

"That's right," agreed his observing friend. "With the present styles they don't have to wait for rainy days." —Puck.

Come Across.
A Texan so bold
Toward the border, we're told,
These words would defiantly toss:
"You who yearn for the fray,
Do not further delay!
Come across! Come across! Come across!"

The Texan at last
To the northward was passed
To collect the poor taxpayer's dross,
And with voice clear and strong
Still he warbled that song,
"Come across! Come across! Come across!"

—Washington Star.

A Friend in Need.
Soubrette—Ravenslype thinks a great deal of the president.
Comedian—Yes, the president did him the best turn any one can possibly do as an actor.

Soubrette—What was it?
Comedian—Gave him an audience.—Judge.

The Perfect Baby.
Little Miss Wigger was measured and weighed.
Measured and charted and given a grade;
Little Miss Wigger was tested with care,
Tested and sounded from instep to hair.
Never a point did the measurers miss—
Never a baby as perfect as this!
"Yes," said the judges, "the prize goes to you."
Hushing, Miss Wigger responded with "Goot!" —Cleveland Plain Dealer.

An Astronomical Theory.
The moon was doing its best to flood Indianapolis' part of the earth with light. Little Margaret and her mother were looking at the moon.
"Oh, mamma," exclaimed Margaret
"look how bright the moon is! It must be nickel plated." —Indianapolis News.

Apology.
Clara and her sister sat without—
We knew a hen was due—
When suddenly exclaimed small Bea,
"Oh, sister, kiss me too!"

Who hesitates is lost, and Clara
Without a single stammer
Replied: "You should say 'prince, my dear,'
Where did you learn such grammar?" —St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Resting.
Patience—Did you see Peggy down at the beach?
Patience—Oh, yes.
"What was she doing—fishing, as usual?"
"No; she said she went down there for a rest." —Yonkers Statesman.

Generalship.
He reached the green in two shots, but, lifting his ball, he said to me:
"It's seven or ten feet, an easy putt. I'll just concede myself a three."
A dandy scheme this seemed to be.
So over to drive I had begun
I said, and lifted from the tee,
"I'll just concede myself a one." —New York World.

A Saving Woman.
Boarder—What do you mean by calling us to breakfast at this hour? It's only 5 o'clock.
Waitress—The missus heard it thundering, and she told me to hurry up and serve breakfast before the milk soured.—Boston Transcript.

With Apologies to Everybody.
Oh, it's easy enough to be pleasant
When life goes along just right,
But the man worth while
Is the man who can smile
When his wife tangoes morn, noon and night. —Life.

Social Uplift.
"You should join our Discussion club, it is no end of benefit."
"Do you cover a wide range of subjects?"
"Oh, no. We confine ourselves exclusively to bridge and tango." —Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Wufl!
He married a corn fed named Maud,
Whose shape wasn't long, but quite broad.
They continued to spoon
For a brief honeymoon.
But now he is chub, chub and jaud,
—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Nothing Doing.
There was a sea, captain named Haun
On the warship with crew of brawn.
It was his proud boast
The enemy to roast.
But when he got there they were gone! —Spokane Spokesman-Review.

His Proceedings.
"A pickpocket in the park caught a couple of spoons the other night."
"What did he do to them?"
"Told them he would knife them unless they would fork over." —Baltimore American.

SISTER: READ MY FREE OFFER!

I am a woman.
I know a woman's trials.
I know her need of sympathy and help.
If you, my sister, are unhappy because of ill-health, if you feel unfit for household duties, social pleasures, or daily employment, write and tell me just how you suffer, and ask for my free ten days' trial of a home treatment suited to your needs. Men cannot understand women's sufferings. What we women know from experience, we know better than any man. I want to tell you how to cure yourself at home at a cost of about 15 cents a week.

If you suffer from women's peculiar ailments causing pain in the head, back, or bowels, feeling of weight and dragging-down sensation, falling or displacement of pelvic organs, causing kidney and bladder weakness or constipation and piles, painful or irregular periods, catarrhal conditions and discharges, extreme nervousness, depressed spirits, melancholy, desire to cry, creeping feeling along the spine, palpitation, the left breast, or a general feeling that life is not worth living.

I INVITE YOU TO SEND TODAY FOR MY FREE TEN DAYS' TREATMENT

and learn how these ailments can be easily and surely conquered at home without the dangers and expense of an operation. When you are cured, and able to enjoy life again, you can pass the good word along to some other sister. My home treatment is for young or old. To Mothers of Daughters, I will explain how to overcome sickness (chlorosis), irregularities, headaches, and lassitude in young women. Remember, it costs you nothing to give my home treatment a ten days' trial, and does not interfere with daily work. If health is worth asking for, then my generous offer and write for the free treatment, including my illustrated booklet, "Woman's Own Medical Adviser." I will send all in plain wrappers post-paid. To save time, you can cut out this offer, mark your feelings, and return to me. Send today, as you may not see this offer again. Address:

MRS. M. SUMMERS, Box H, SOUTH BEND, IN.

Paragraphs from "GERMANY AND THE GERMANS"

BY PRICE COLLIER.

The policy of making other people afraid of you must have an end, the policy of making others respect and like you can have no end.

Germany has shown us that the short-cut to the governing of a people by suppression and strangulation results in a dreary development of mediocrity. She has proved again that the only safety in the world for either an individual or a nation is to be loved and respected, and in these days no one respects slavery or loves threats.

What every democracy of free men wants is not as much, but as little, organization as possible compatible with economical administration of industry, the army, the navy, and the affairs of the state.

As long as we Christians have given up any shred of belief in Christian ethics, as applicable to international disputes, we must live by the law of the strongest. We do not bless the poor in spirit, but the self-confident; we do not bless the meek, but the proud; we do not bless the peace-makers, but those who urge us to prepare for war; we do not bless the reviled and the persecuted and the slandered, but those who revolt against injustice and tyranny; we do not approve the cutting off of the right hand, but admire the mailed fist; and it is only adding to the confusion to raise millions for war ourselves, and then to present a handsomely bound copy of the Beatitudes to our rivals.

Exegesis solves no international quarrels, and the mastery of men is not gained with dictionaries and grammars.

We really know and hold as an inalienable intellectual possession only what we have gained by our own effort, and with a certain degree of actual exertion. People who have never worked out their own salvation always join, at last, that large class in the body politic who don't know what they want, and who will never be happy until they get it.

MERRYMEETING POND PROJECT

Company's Proposal for Supply of Water Is Rejected by Various Cities.

At a conference of mayors and officials of water boards in this section, held in Dover, Friday afternoon, the new proposal of the New Hampshire Water Supply Company to furnish Dover, Portsmouth and Somersworth with water for all purposes from Merrymeeting pond, New Durham, was discussed. Certain reductions in prices, made from the company's proposal of last year, were rejected by all.

No definite understanding was reached, but the statements of officials showed the company's proposal was still too high for Portsmouth and Somersworth. Mayor Brown of the latter city said it is prohibitive. Mayor Preston of Rochester said that no proposal had been received by Rochester and that increased pressure for fire service was all that was needed there.

Mayor Foss said that an investigation of the present cost of city water, the cost of obtaining an additional supply nearby and the probable depreciation of the pumping plant during the life of the proposed contract with the water supply company would be necessary before deciding whether the new proposal was satisfactory.

As the project must fall unless two or more cities join, another meeting may be held later, it is said.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Mary A. Griffin

Mrs. Mary A. Griffin, wife of Michael J. Griffin died at her home on Richards avenue this Saturday morning at 5.30 o'clock after a long illness. She was about 60 years old and was born in Ireland, being the daughter of John and Mary (Daniels) Connery. When seven years old, she came to this country and located in Walpole, Mass. She resided there up to the time of her marriage to Mr. Griffin. Shortly after their marriage the young couple took up their residence in this city where they have resided for upwards of forty years. Mrs. Griffin was a woman of domestic qualities and took a deep interest in her home affairs. She will be sincerely missed by the immediate household as well as by a large circle of acquaintances. During the happy union eight children were born, four of whom James P., William T., Dr. Samuel F., and Michael J. Griffin, Jr., survive. To the grief stricken husband and the four sons the sympathy of a large circle of friends is extended.

WILL CONTINUE EVENING SCHOOL

Civic Association Holds Instructive Meeting.

The Civic Association held a very interesting and instructive meeting yesterday afternoon, at the home of Mrs. Martha Kimball. Various ways and means for the betterment of the community were discussed, one of great importance being the sewer at the South End, which has been a menace to the residents of that part of the city for some time.

Mrs. Hewitt gave a report of the evening school, showing good results, and it was voted to continue the same as the attendance of previous years has been large and great interest is shown among those who are glad to have the opportunity to learn the English language.

The meetings of the club are always well attended and all women are invited to attend and join the Association if they are interested enough to do so.

In overcoats, Raglans, Balmacaans and "split sleeve" models are the favorites and very smart they are, too, as the fabrics are full of "life."

METROPOLITAN OPERA COMPANY

Metropolitan Opera House

Giulio Gatti-Casazza, General Manager

New York, March 23, 1914.

Gentlemen:

Since November, 1911, this Company has been using, exclusively, the Hardman Pianos. There have been eighteen of these instruments in constant use in the dressing rooms of the artists, in the orchestra, and elsewhere for practical work, besides a large number used by the artists in their private apartments, and it gives me much pleasure to express on behalf of this Company and also the artists taking part in the performances, the thorough satisfaction we all feel in these instruments.

The fine tone quality, fullness and splendid durability of the Hardman Pianos are fully recognized by every one here, and it is very evident that they must be exceedingly well built to stand the usage to which they are subjected, owing to the extremely heavy demands which we make upon them.

We shall start upon the coming season of 1914-1915 with complete assurance in regard to the unqualified satisfaction that the Hardman Pianos will give to us, and to our artists.

Believe me, Very truly yours,

JOHN BROWN, Business Comptroller.
